Tips for commissioning

Are you ready to commission?

- Are you clear enough about the details, scope, and outcomes to begin formal commissioning?
- Are you sure what impact you want to achieve and the best form of advice for doing so?
- Who is going to be managing the task, deliverable, or project, and are they clear on their responsibilities?
- Is the detail of your planned commission proportionate to the task and person?
- When and how will any changes to the commission be communicated and recorded?

For the new or developing

- Set tasks and be detailed
- Assign support / coach / expert
- Coach them through the steps
- Meet to discuss frequently

For the somewhat experienced

- Empower and support
- Check in regularly, clarify and confirm progress and direction
- Recommend as needed

For the expert

- Set parameters
- Respond to questions on request

Are you ready to be commissioned?

- Have you prepared your initial thinking and ideas about the output?
  - Key messages?
  - Purpose of documents?
  - Audience?
- Are you clear about what makes a good commission for you? Have you prepared questions that will get you the answers you need?
- What support and information do you think you need in this situation?
- Commissioning can be an ongoing process to decide how it will be updated and tracked over the course of the work.
